Did you read William R. Nelson's panegyric of T. R.?

The cabinet makers are already busy.

Judge Albert D. Norton, Bull Moose candidate for governor, has made the proper confession. He writes Teddy that it was "A Moral Victory."

Thanks, Teddy. You humiliated Mr. Taft, made an ass of yourself, and incidentally disgusted 88,765,892 American citizens.

The Kansas City Star ought to feel mighty humble after the sound thrashing all of its pets received. Nelson's game seems to be pretty well advertised.

The editor of the Kansas City Star in his telegram to Mr. Roosevelt said in part, "We haven't been fighting for a place, but for a purpose." That sentence was very adroitly worded, as Mr. Nelson was fighting for the purpose of being appointed Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and Mr. Roosevelt was fighting for a double purpose, that of humiliating Mr. Taft, and a third term for the Presidency. Mr. Nelson never fights for a place, directly; that comes after the purpose has been accomplished.

THE VICTORY.

The Democratic party throughout the nation is triumphant in the most complete and decisive victory ever won by a political party in the history of the country. This shifting of political preferment by thousands and thousands of voters is not such a great surprise as it first appears. Democratic leaders may make a mistake in placing the credit, and no harm will be done if they do; but, at any rate, it must be considered a trial order, and if the quality of administrative service does not meet the guarantee, they may look for a cancellation of the order at the first possible opportunity. The tremendous responsibilities assumed by the party under the contract will best be met by faithfully carrying out the promises made in the platform and enforcing the laws impartially. The death

Dr. Hartman Answers Questions About The Revised Pe-ru-na

S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.

In response to a great many queries I wish to make public statement concerning the sale of Pe-ru-na.

No, we are not selling as much Pe-ru-na as we used to. The reason for this is the change in the formula of Pe-ru-na.

The patent medicine business is very peculiar and particular. A person who has been in the habit of taking patent medicine will notice very quickly the slightest alteration in color, taste or effect. It does not look as it used to, or smell as it used to, or have exactly the same taste as it used to. It does not feel exactly the same in the stomach as before. The medicine will be promptly returned to the drug store and a new bottle demanded.

All this I knew before I changed the formula of Pe-ru-na, which I did six years ago, but did not realize the difficulty of overcoming the people's notions on this subject.

I made a change in the formula of Pe-ru-na. Quite a radical change. A change that altered the color and the taste and somewhat the medicinal effect of Pe-ru-na. I did this believing it was the best thing to do under the circumstances.

Immediately the change appeared, the people began to complain of Pe-ru-na. They generally thought the druggist was to blame, that their bottle of Pe-ru-na had been tampered with. This made bad feelings between the users of Pe-ru-na and the druggists. The druggists in some cases became irritated and angered and made complaint to the wholesalers and manufacturers. Thus the trade was temporarily in an uproar.

After a year of explanation the trade quieted down and the new Pe-ru-na took its place in the drug stores as a popular household remedy. And yet it has not attained the popularity that the other Pe-ru-na had. Changing the formula of Pe-ru-na was equivalent to introducing a new medicine into the drug trade, an extremely difficult thing to do now-a-days.

Pe-ru-na as it is made today is a very excellent remedy for catarrh and general catarrhal ailments. It is for sale in all drug stores and has a slight laxative effect, very much needed in these days. It seemed to me that it was in many ways a better remedy than before. Yet in spite of all explanations there is a considerable demand for the old Pe-ru-na as it used to be made.

I have authorized the formation of a company to manufacture it, under the trade name of Ka-tar-no. The Ka-tar-no Co. is located in Columbus, Ohio, and stands ready to supply the trade with the old-time formula of Pe-ru-na under the name of Ka-tar-no.

struggle in the Republican party, the high cost of living and the tariff tax were contributory causes of this overwhelming defeat of Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt. The Democratic party under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson has a great opportunity of restoring the government to the people by giving every man equal rights under the constitution and the law. Piracy and demagoguery have had their day.

After Victory.

"It is easier to win victory than it is to use it," remarked Charles H. Parkhurst on the morning after the triumphant election of Col. Strong to the majority of New York by the forces of reform.

We commend these words to the attention of all true Democrats. A tremendous opportunity is before the party, and opportunity always involves responsibility in exact proportion to it. The main concern now is not the exchange of felicitations and the burning of red fire. "Are you a Quaker?" asked the small boy of the plainly garbed old man. "Yea," he answered. "A shaking Quaker?" pursued his interlocutor. "Yea," came the answer once more. "Well, then," said the small boy, "do it!" This is the necessity that confronts the Democratic party. We have captured the presidency, retained the House and won the Senate. We have relegated to private life the chief dispensers of the loaves and fishes of privilege. We have placed at the head of the Government a man who commands universal respect both for character and capacity. We are squarely on trial. We accept the ordeal. All true Democrats make haste to acknowledge that the exact measure of the value of the Democracy to our national life is about to be determined by the kind of test from which there is no appeal. We rejoice in the fact. We believe the party has come to its kingdom for such a time as this.

The Democracy proposes to proceed to equalize opportunity made unequal by those laws and regulations that have administered the Government to help the privileged few make money. The difficulty of the task is clearly recognized. Democrats entertain no illusions as to its perils and complexities. Nothing dies so hard as a well rooted abuse. The task is one to demand all of principle, patience, patriotism and homely sense that we can command.

One reflection cannot but sober the Democrat who looks with eyes unafraid upon his country's future. Notwithstanding the great popular endorsement of the Democratic proposals, the Democratic party is the sole resource of those doctrines, and that spirit, in the night of which all the glories of our early history were won. There are four parties in the field—and three of them are Socialistic.

The Socialism of Gary and Frick with their demand that the Government take over the regulation of all industries and the fixing of all prices, differs only in detail from that of Debs. Both the Republican and the Progressive parties have turned their backs upon the old conception of the free citizen in the free State; each looks to the increase of governmental overlordship, to the progressive centralization of government, for the solution of present difficulties.

Should the Democracy fail to measure up to the height of the present opportunity, the next experiment in government in these United States will be a venture in Socialism. This is the last chance for the open game as American political traditions understand it; if we fail, the mass-play of a centralized government, stifling initiative, hardening and crystallizing the social structure and depriving the individual of the keenest joys of self-direction will be all that will be left. While the Democracy fights, with the joy of the strong in the hour of conflict, it should not forget that for government as Jefferson understood it this is the last stand.

In this hour we ought to stop to remember just where our ultimate strength lies. It is not in the wisdom of our leaders, though the Republic yields to none in appreciation of the invaluable services of Wilson, Marshall, Clark, Bryan, Underwood and other great Democrats of the present hour. But when we assume the actual burden of government, with the inevitable heartburnings, jealousies and misunderstandings that arise in the conduct of affairs, the exceptional powers of the few cannot save us.

The future of the Democracy turns on the extent to which the great fundamental principles of the party are really grasped by the minds and honored in the hearts of the great mass of Democrats of the rank and file. No passing mistakes of leadership can wreck a party bound by a common faith. What is really to be tested in the coming days is not the exceptional capacity of a few picked men; it is the extent to which the millions of Democrats in this broad land really love and honor Democratic principles.

The Republic's hope for the political future of this nation is grounded in its faith in the soundness of heart and conscience and clearness of sight of the great mass of American Democrats.—St. Louis Republic.

A Message From Woodrow Wilson.

"The result gives us the hope that the thoughtful voters of the nation may now at last unite to give the country freedom and enterprise and a government released from selfish and arrogant influences devoted to justice and progress.

"There is absolutely nothing for the honest and enlightened business man of the country to fear. No man whose business is conducted without violation of the rights of free competition and without such private understandings or secret alliances as violate the principle of our laws and the policy of all wholesome commerce and enterprise, need fear either interference or embarrassment from the administration.

"Our hope and purpose is to bring all the free forces of the Nation into active and intelligent co-operation and to give to our prosperity a freshness and spirit and a confidence such as it has not had in our time.

"The responsibilities of the party are tremendous, but they are common responsibilities, which all leaders of action and opinion must share. And with the confidence of the people behind us everything that is right is possible.

"My own ambition will be more than satisfied if I may be permitted to be the frank spokesman of the Nation's thought in these great matters."
